

WORKSHOP RESOURCES

These materials have been designed to assist facilitators to implement the Modules in workshops or meetings. These materials include:

Workshop Model

This is a hypothetical workshop that can take place in a two-hour time period and demonstrates ways of implementing workshop material from the modules as well as materials from the IVT.

Appendix A – Troubleshooting

The troubleshooting section highlights some problematic comments or situations that have come up when working through this project material in meetings and workshops. These comments and situations are based on assumptions about Aboriginal issues that often affect participants' level of engagement in discussions. This appendix offers some possible ways to work through these comments and situations.

Appendix B – Using the IVT

The Interactive Video/Transcript Viewer (IVT) has been included as a way to provide users with a way of accessing the full interviews is an innovative, web-based tool developed in the First Nations Studies Program at the University of British Columbia. The IVT synchronizes a video with its transcript so that the transcript page updates automatically as the video plays. You can also search the transcript for key words and phrases and go directly to that segment of the video. The IVT provides a way of quickly and easily searching specific clips from interviews for discussion in workshops and meetings. This appendix provides an overview of how to use the IVT (included on the DVD-ROM for this resource package) in both Mac and PC environments.
